

Lidia Ravviso graduated in Cinemas Studies at University in Rome, where she works as a director and video editor. She travelled a lot and directed three documentaries ('Jalla!', shot in the Palestinian Territories, 'Tigers of Guca', finalist at the RIFF 2011, CinemaClik 2012 and 'Unstoppable', on the roots of Hip Hop in London) and many music videos. She is also an established video artist, in the 2010 joined the Ladyfest International Festival and the same year her video 'Exit' won a special mention at Festarte, international videoart festival. In the 2011 created an independent film production company, Woka with wich produces a feature film, 4 documentaries and a number of music videos. In the 2013 she joins Le ragazze del Porno, a collective of 10 female directors who produces porno - erotic movies. For this project Lidia writes and directes a short film, Insight, in collaboration with another director, Slavina, Meanwhile, she also works as an international aid in Palestinian territories, where she teaches audiovisual production.